Subject: Re: Another AMAZING Meier hit!

Hello Victor.

Just so you are aware, scientific investigation led The British Museum to determine that the crystal skull in its possession was a hoax in 1996 (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Crystal_skull). Scientific investigation led Joe Nickell to determine that other crystal skulls were also hoaxes in 1988 (<http://skepdic.com/crystalskull.html>). Also, scientific investigation led Jacques Vallee to determine that the Philadelphia Experiment was a hoax in 1994 (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Philadelphia_experiment and <http://skepdic.com/philadel.html>).

So, once again, the scientific method predates the Meier predictions. This time by an impressive 10-18 years.

If you wish to discuss the efficacy of Meier's other predictions please feel free to contact me directly.

Sincerely,

Derek Bartholomaus

Question from the Reader

And finally, different things were told to me, on one hand something about the Philadelphia Experiment and about abductions by extraterrestrials and contacts with them. Also, as it was explained much lie and deceit are behind it. On the other hand, also photos have been shown to me, on which crystal skulls, which should have come from extraterrestrials could be seen. Unfortunately I have never cared about such things and therefore have no experience with it consequently I cannot decide what should I think of all this. Kindly, a friend of mine, told me about your web site address, which he had, so that I could search in there, whereas I've found it quite astonishing that it was unknown to me until now. Since I think now, that you, Billy Meier, can certainly tell me, what is this which I have asked all about, so I turn to you with the request, to be able to give me information regarding my questions in one of your bulletins, that I have also found in the internet, for which I already thank you now.

U. Ermann, Germany

Answer

Unfortunately, out of forgetfulness, I can give you an answer to your questions only in the June's Bulletin in 2006, which you will please excuse, because certainly you have already been waiting for it earlier. Unfortunately I always have much about the ears which is why it sometimes can happen, that something is missing by me and only appears again lately.

Now, as an answer, I will explain to you with the necessary excerpts from the official 400th Contact Report of 25th September 2005, which should satisfactorily explain your questions:

Billy: I have also ascertained it while you were away and I looked through the questions. But look here, there I have some notes - I am always asked again and again namely about what the crystal heads found in South America are all about as well as with the alleged Philadelphia experiment. Of course I have explained many times and again that the crystal heads have nothing to do with extraterrestrials and therefore also are not attributed to such however these crystal heads were manufactured in the 19th Century in Germany.

Nevertheless this will not be accepted as truth just like the fact also that the Philadelphia experiment only corresponds to a fantastic hoax because namely such an experiment has never taken place. Now here - this man here, a Mr. Ermann, from Germany, which would like me again to ask to you and then publish the answer in a bulletin. Can you please give an answer to the questions in brief form?

Ptaah: Officially we have never talked about it but several times only in a private manner. Therefore, I would like to will give an answer, which should be in a official form, with which however, I want to restrict myself to the essential,: The crystal skulls named by you, that were found in South America and is connected to the Mayas and supposedly should have originated from extraterrestrials, as you just said, were fabricated in Germany in the 19th Century, in fact in the gem and Diamond-polishing cities of those places, that were unified in 1933 in the city of Idar-Oberstein. The client was a prosperous man by the name of Florian Rosenfelder, from Germany, that operated privately and was hobbyist archaeologist and who brought the crystal heads also to the Maya region, then to “discover” it in order to cause a sensation. Although he was able only to place the crystal heads at different places where he thought it would be “discovered” before witnesses however, he did not succeeded with that because he died of a poisoning, that he suffered through the natives, that then robbed him. And to say something regarding the so-called Philadelphia experiment, about which firstly an author by the name of Berlitz wrote a fantasious book: There was never such an experiment anywhere else neither in the USA or any other place of the Earth ever. The whole fantastic history is based on fraudulent claims of a man by the name of Kal Allen, in principle concerning a supposedly experiment with a ship, who was named <USS Eldridge>. The man thought that his image would rise with this lying story and also could become rich through it. As he didn't succeed with this story and the situation became too precarious for him to be exposed as a liar, he vanished without a trace.

Billy: The story is known by me, however I didn't know how the ship was named. It is claimed that the US-Navy did an experiment with huge electromagnetic vibrations in the harbor of Philadelphia in October 1943 etc. with which the named ship then vanished without a trace and reappeared again in the harbor of Norfolk 500 kilometers away in order to vanish also again there after a short time and, to become visible again in the harbor of Philadelphia.

Ptaah: Yes, that is it, in short terms the lying story.

Now, is it still asking to much of the slandering, lying defamers, the Biedney's, Rltzmann's, Bartholmaus' and the rest of the nasty bunch to admit that they've been 180 degrees WRONG?
